

RENO'S SHOW IS THE CELEBRATION

ALL OTHERS PALE INTO INSIGNIFICANCE.

TWO PUGS FIT FOR BATTLE

Which Will Monopolize Attention of all Patriots on Glorious Independence Day, 1910.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Reno, Nev., July 2.—The eyes of men all over the world interested in things pugilistic are fixed on Reno, in this busy little city, in the great arena, tonight, after the announcement of Gov. Gillette of California, made it certain that the scene of the fight must be transferred from San Francisco to Reno, the holder of the world's heavyweight championship title, and James J. Jeffries, the undefeated giant who emerged from his retirement of eight years to make an effort to regain the laurels he voluntarily surrendered, will battle next Monday afternoon according to rules laid down by the Marquis of Queensbury.

To experts of the game no battle in the history of the ring will be more interesting. The two gladiators have completed their grueling work of preparation and are resting on their arms, fit as the proverbial fiddlers, little or nothing will either do in the way of training tomorrow. Jeffries is still at his cottage headquarters on the outskirts of the town, where he will remain until a few hours before the fight. He certainly never looked more fit in his life. His muscles stand out hard and firm over his including Tom Sharkey, Bob Fitzsimmons and Jim Corbett. His fighting weight is greater than that of any man since John L. Sullivan. His reach exceeds that of any of the latter-day champions. In almost every measurement he has the advantage over Johnson, with the exception of height. The black fighter is about an inch taller.

Both victor and vanquished will come out of Monday's battle with thousands of dollars added to their bank accounts. The purse amounts to $105,000, the largest ever offered. Of this amount the winner will receive 75 per cent. In addition to this he is expected that both fighters will realize vast sums from the picture rights. The only doubt so far as the financial end of the bill is concerned relates to the promoters' profits. While it is admitted that the number of spectators, especially from the coast, will be lessened by the transfer of the battle from San Francisco to Reno, the prospects nevertheless appear bright for an immense crowd. If the ring enthusiasts continue dropping into town tomorrow as they have during the past twenty-four hours an attendance of from 20,000 to 25,000 is assured. At the high prices charged for tickets a 20,000 crowd will mean that the promoters of the fight will come out on the right side.

MILK SUPPLIES FOR MILWAUKEE CUT OFF

Demand of Shippers for Raise Refused and They Cut Off Supplies—Canned Milk Being Used.

(BY UNITED PRESS.)

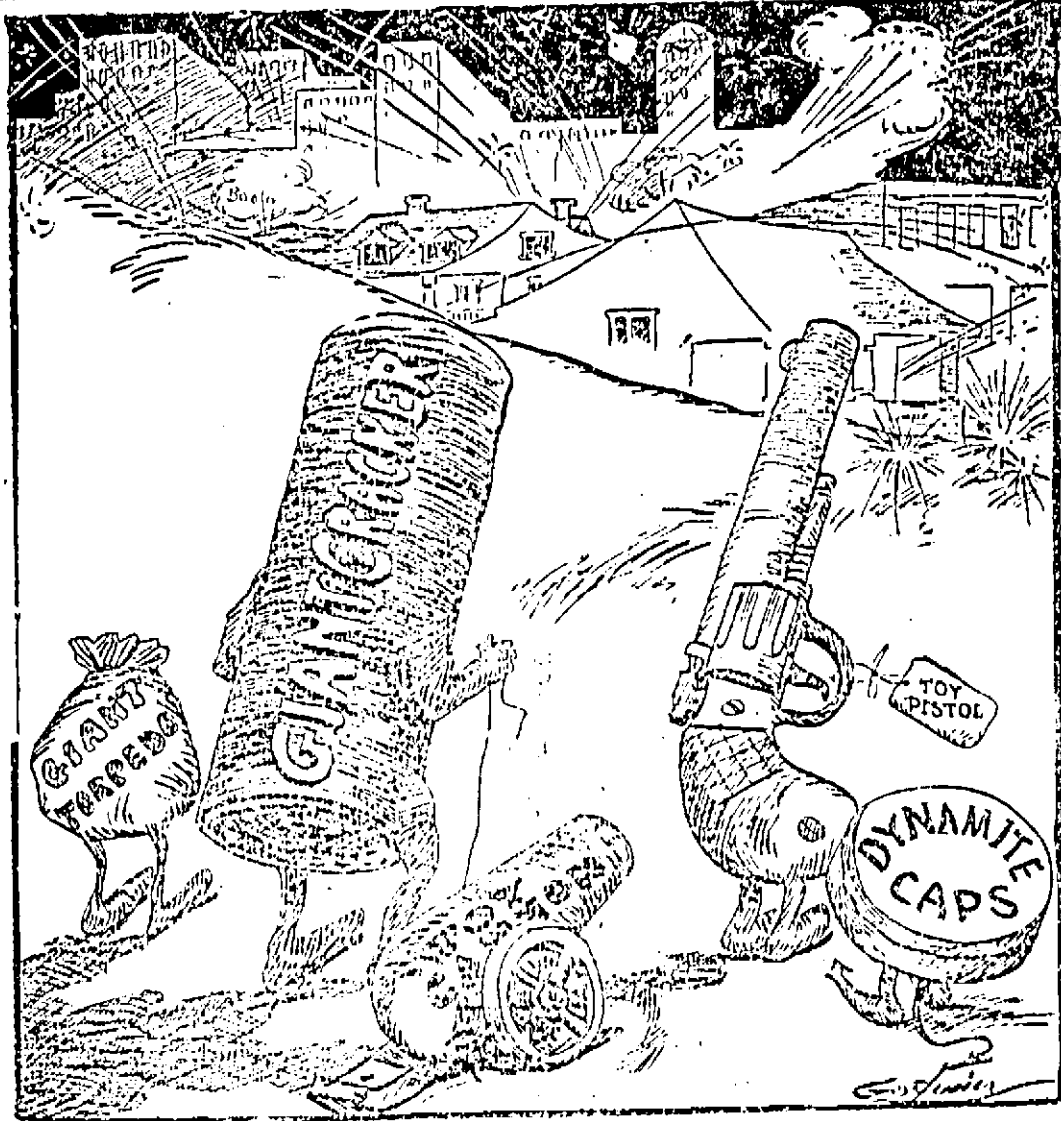

Milwaukee, Wis., July 2.—What threatened to be a serious milk famine in Milwaukee is being averted. The milk strike of shippers in counties near here began this morning, and as a result only private families were supplied. There was absolutely no delivery of milk to hotels, or wholesalers, the dealers making their full efforts the supplying of the house to house trade. The shippers a few days ago demanded a twenty percent increase in the price, and the dealers refused to pay. The result was a stopping of shipments. Great suffering is feared if the house supply is cut off as the strike spreads. Agents of the dealers are now canvassing distant parts of the state. Meanwhile the hotels and ice cream factories are using canned milk from western factories in enormous amounts. One ice cream factory last night used five tons of canned milk.

Up the state there have been a total of ten deaths due to heat, and the last four days have caused the deaths by drowning of nine others who sought relief by bathing or boating.

The heat spread rapidly after that hour. Several accidents have been caused by heat. Former President to Hear Insurgents' Side of the Recent Political Trouble.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Oyster Bay, July 2.—Senator Brickett and Representatives Madison and Murdoch of Kansas, all insurgents, arrived at noon for a conference with Roosevelt today. It was admittedly the most important conference participated in by the former president since his return from Africa. That their presence was considered important even by Col. Roosevelt was indicated by the newspaper correspondents that they were coming. Therefore whenever guests were expected Col. Roosevelt had declined to meet the newspaper men before their arrival and has positively declined to discuss the nature of their mission. It was requested that they press upon the subject that he make a public statement of his views early. By doing so he would allay the cause of the insurgents.

HEAT PROSTRATION BROUGHT ON DEATH

Andrew Jergensen, Farm Hand Employed Near Edgerton Died Yesterday Of Sun Stroke.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Edgerton, Wis., July 2.—Andrew Jergensen, aged twenty-eight, died at 6:30 o'clock last night at the home of Bert Page who resides on a farm about one and a half miles from this city. The young man had been feeling poorly for the last couple days due to the extremely hot weather and was told by Mr. Page to take a rest until he felt better. About 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon he seemed to feel better and thought he would go to work, but returned to the house in half an hour and went directly to his room.

When the call was given for supper there was no response from Mr. Jergensen and upon going into the room Mr. Page was unable to awaken the young man, and thinking that he might be worse immediately phoned for Dr. Chesney, who directed Mr. Page to pack the young man in ice until he could get there.

When the doctor got there he found Mr. Jergensen in a very serious condition and in spite of his best efforts the young man died in five minutes. The cause of death was heat exhaustion.

Mr. Jergensen came to this city from Denmark last November and has worked for Mr. Page since his arrival. He has no relatives in this country. Funeral arrangements will be given later.

G. W. Blanchard spent yesterday in Rochelle looking after the business interests of Wilson Bros.

GREAT PROMISE OF NOISELESS FOURTH

Movement To Eliminate Dangerous Explosives Has Been Successful in Many Cities—News Of Coming Week.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Washington, D. C., July 2.—For the first time in history, a "noiseless Fourth" will be the slogan of the Independence Day celebrations throughout a large section of the country on Monday. The movement to eliminate dangerous explosives which in the past has resulted in so many fatalities has gained a strong foothold, especially in the large cities, where old-fashioned amusements and historical exercises will be indulged in. In accordance with custom the day will be marked by immemorial sporting and athletic contests of every variety. Foremost among the events of this nature, so far as the attention of the public is concerned, will be the fight at Reno between James J. Jeffries and Jack Johnson for the world's pugilistic championship.

President Taft, according to his present program, will put in the busiest Fourth he has ever experienced. Leaving his summer home in Beverly at an early hour Monday he will motor to Revere Beach and Somerville and later into Boston reviewing "safe and sane Fourth of July parades" in each place. After taking luncheon with President Lowell of Harvard University he will go to the Stadium to deliver the opening address at the annual convention of the National Educational Association.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the Canadian premier accompanied by other leaders of the Liberal party, will depart from Ottawa for an extensive political speaking tour of the west. The trip will occupy two months and will extend westward to the Pacific.

The notable wedding of the week will be that of Miss Anna Cockrell, daughter of ex-senator Cockrell of Missouri, and L. A. Coromilas, the minister from Greece to the United States. The wedding will take place at Norwich, Conn.

Speaker Cannon, of the House of Representatives, is scheduled to open the congressional campaign in Ohio with an address at the Urban League assembly Thursday.

Other events that will furnish news of the week will include the unveiling of statues of Henry Clay in Lexington and Frederick Douglass in Washington. In Detroit, the opening of the Elks' national convention in the same city, the assembling of the Pan-American conference in Buenos Ayres, the proceedings of the International Railway Congress in Berne, an international congress of the Swedish church in London, and the Royal Hanley regatta, in which Canadian rowers will contest for honors against the best men of England and the continent.

TEACHERS TO HONOR MRS. ELLA F. YOUNG?

Superintendent of Chicago Schools May Be Named Head of National Educational Association.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Boston, July 2.—Boston today began the entertainment of the tens of thousands of school teachers from all parts of the country, who are here for the annual convention of the National Educational Association. The delegates began arriving yesterday. Each hour has added hundreds until today when the teachers began passing into the city by the thousands. All of the teachers are loud in their praise of the arrangements for housing the visitors and for their entertainment. Members of the local reception bureau are everywhere in evidence, piloting visiting teachers to the old Pine Area museum, where headquarters are being maintained, and to Mount Temple and other auditoriums where the general sessions and department conferences are to hold forth.

Sessions of the National Council of Education, the first body to meet, were held today. Features of the program were reports presented by the committees on exceptional children, industrial education, and moral education in public schools. The prominent speakers included Superintendent James A. Greenwood of Kansas City, James H. Van Sickle of Baltimore, Frederick P. Fish of the Massachusetts State Board of Education, and Homer E. Brown, United States Commissioner of Education.

The general sessions will be opened with an address by President Taft on Monday afternoon and will continue until next Friday. No important matters out of the routine and aside from those scheduled on the program are anticipated. While there will be the usual election of officers, there is a dearth of politics. A large and enthusiastic delegation from Illinois is pushing the candidacy of Mrs. Ella F. Young, superintendent of the Chicago public schools, for the presidency of the association. If the Illinois teachers are successful, as they do not hesitate to assert they will be, Mrs. Young will be the first woman among a long line of illustrious educators to hold the important position of head of the great educational association. She already has the distinction of being the first woman superintendent of schools in the United States, and head of the second largest school system.

FAMILY AFFAIR IS MIXED UP

SIX MEN AND PRIVATE DETECTIVE TO EVICT OCCUPANTS OF HOUSE.

ATTEMPTED TO SEIZE FARM

Are Arrested Themselves Today by the Deputy Sheriffs After Standing Off Siege All Night.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Waukesha, Wis., July 2.—As the result of an attempt by six men, led by a private detective, to seize farm property on the east side of Pine Lake near Hartland, six men are being held in Waukesha and one in Oconomowoc. The seven men, all from Milwaukee, are: Fred Schmidt, Ed. Killings, J. J. Kagan, Frank Frost, C. Meyer, and W. C. Meyer in the Waukesha jail, and Benjamin Stetz in the Oconomowoc jail. The trouble is said to be the outcome of an attempt on the part of Mrs. Sarah Sands of Morton, Waukesha county to sell the farm consisting of 20 acres, to Frank J. Mann, Milwaukee. Her daughter, Mrs. Mary T. Gunther, who with her family, was living on the farm, objected and sought to have a guardian appointed for her mother before the deal should be perfected. Judge Agnew refused a guardian. Mrs. Sands sold the property and secured a court order to cause Mrs. Gunther to vacate. Mrs. Gunther appealed and the case is still pending. On Friday the deeds were reported and later in the day, it is alleged, the seven men demanded possession, locked the house, detaining Mrs. Gunther inside. Mrs. Gunther was injured by broken glass when she attempted to escape. Undersheriff Don Randall and Deputy Harris were refused admission by the men. It was not until this morning that the men concluded to surrender.

All Arrangements Have Been Practically Completed For Opening of the National Convention.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Detroit, Mich., July 2.—The local committee announced today the practical completion of all arrangements for the national convention of Elks, which is to open in this city one week hence. The reservation of rooms at hotels and boarding houses indicate a record-breaking attendance and it is confidently predicted that 300,000 visitors will be here when the convention is at its height. COUNTY TEACHERS MEET JULY 11-22, BOARDS, JULY 12

Supt. O. D. Antidel Preparing for Annual Gathering of School Teachers and School Boards.

Rock county teachers will have an opportunity to attend the annual institute this year at the Janesville high school, July 11 to 22, and on July 12, at the same building, will be held the Rock County School Board convention. Arrangements for both meetings are being rapidly completed by County Superintendent O. D. Antidel and it is hoped to have both gatherings exceed any previous meetings. Superintendent H. C. Budd, Superintendent F. E. Converse and Principal J. C. Whitford will conduct the work at the teachers' institute.

Under the new law, only those teachers who have taught at least eight months will be expected to attend the institute as those who have not taught that length of time are applicants for a certificate and are compelled to attend for six weeks some professional school like White-water. Some experienced teachers, however, are planning to attend the six weeks' course in order to secure higher grades.

Legislative requirements for teachers have been relaxed, people are demanding better trained teachers and paying more for them, and the schools need instructors who are well prepared, so those who expect to teach in this county will be expected to take advantage of the opportunities offered at the institute and training school unless excused for good reasons.

Work offered at the institute will be partly of each grade; in third grade, history, civics, arithmetic, geography, language, agriculture and advanced reading; in second grade, American literature, physical geography, and library work; in first grade, work that is needed most, probably algebra and physics. Special features will be announced as details appear. Examinations will be as follows: Friday, July 15, at Janesville, in orthography, spelling, penmanship, school management, physiology and manual. At Janesville, Saturday, July 23, 25 and 26, all grades. Second grades, July 25. First grades, July 26. Clinton, July 28, 29. Evansville, August 1 and 2. Whitewater summer school closes about August 25, and it is expected that examinations will be held there about that time for those there and in all grades.

Board Convention.
In order to give the members of the various school boards an opportunity to meet the teachers, the Rock County School Board convention has been set for July 12 at the Janesville high school. The law requires that every clerk attend while the treasurer and directors are also invited. Each member who attends is allowed two dollars from the district and three cents a mile going and coming.

That the meeting may be as helpful as possible to all concerned, invitation has been made that delegates bring up questions regarding portions of the work that have proved troublesome; some of the things that have proved helpful or troublesome in the work, in what way are teachers helping or failing in their work, in what ways can school work be made more effective?

For the county board meeting the following program has been prepared: 9:30 to 10:00: Enrollment and questions.

10:00 to 10:20: "Practical Education," W. W. Dale, Southern Wisconsin Business College.

10:20 to 11:10: "The Schoolroom as a Home," Inspector W. A. Hunt.

11:10 to 12:00: "School Board Duties," Judge C. D. Ross.

12:00 to 1:30: Intermission.

1:30 to 1:50: Questions.

1:50 to 2:10: "Desirable Education," H. A. Moschovich.

2:10 to 2:30: "How the Home can Help the School," Rev. J. A. Berkh.

2:30 to 3:10: "The Class Work of the School Room, and How to Observe It," W. E. Larson, rural school inspector.

3:10 to 4:00: Questions and general discussion. Special session for graded schools.

PLANTING DELAYED BY TORRID WEATHER

Tobacco Setting Retarded and in Many Cases Prevented Because of Long Drought.

The transplanting of the present tobacco crop, says the Edgerton Reporter, has been attended with trying circumstances this year. About the only section of the state where the planting has proceeded under fairly normal conditions has been in the extreme southern counties, and even here the hot, burning temperature has greatly retarded the work and occasioned much retooling. Nearly the entire state north of Dane county up to the beginning of the present week has been burning up under a three weeks' drought which put transplanting almost out of the question. Everything pointed to an early transplanting season; there was an abundance of plants in readiness for the fields and all that was necessary was suitable weather conditions to see the crop out within the usual dates in this state. Cool weather is needed during transplanting rather than hot, burning days that have provided the past two weeks with the bulk of the crop ought to be going into the fields. Even with the breaking of the drought in the northern growing sections the planting now cannot be anything but late, and all together the outlook for the starting of the 1910 crop is anything but encouraging. In fact, it has been some years since the growers have met with greater difficulties in getting the crop into the fields.

Another work of hot burning weather has proven very trying to the newly transplanted tobacco crop, making it very difficult to complete the setting, which under ordinary conditions would have been done at this date. As matters now stand at least one-third of the acreage is unplanted July 1st, while rain and cooler weather is greatly needed to facilitate the work of securing a good stand of plants in the field. Tobacco, however, is standing up as well or even better than most other crops under the burning heat. The drought in the northern counties was broken on Sunday, but more moisture is again needed throughout the state.

But very little news has developed in the market for cured leaf. A few scattering sales from first hands in all the time taking place, but the amount remaining in the country is already reduced below that usually held. H. T. Sweeney disposed of a 75cc lot of '09 and a carload of '10 during the week.

The warehouse handling of last season's crop is now confined to a few days and then stemming operations are starting up to take over the released help.

The shipments out of storage reach 350 cases from this market to all points or the week. Since last report 3 cars have been received from outside points.

Wistaria Trained Into Trees.

The wistaria tree is the latest Japanese effect sought by expensive gardeners. To train one into any kind of shape takes three years of patient pruning, but the result is well worth waiting for, so foreign and artistic and unusual. The vine is first allowed to grow to a height of four feet, and then all tendrils are clipped at the top and those at the sides made to train out over stakes. These are kept pruned as they grow into branches. When strong enough they are permitted to bloom, and clusters of pale violet flowers soon hang in profusion from the spreading, miniature trees.

PUTS BLAME ON FAMILY RULE

Writer in Eastern Periodical Sincerely Arraigns American Parents as Responsible for Evil.

It is manifest to the most careless observer that the public conscience of America is thoroughly aroused and that the American people are resolute in the determination to have a general "house-cleaning." This sentiment is confined to no section or state; it pervades the entire body politic from ocean to ocean, says the Washington Post.

If it shall result in governors who will rigidly execute the laws without fear or favor; judges who will dispense justice, with balance rightly adjusted, speedily and without delay; jurors who will do their duty, "blind to the offender and lynx-eyed to the deed," a new era will come to bless our land.

Our tribulation is all in the fault of the people themselves. Nowhere else in Christendom are found children with so little reverence for parental admonition and with so much contempt for parental authority as the average American family. It is a rare youth of seventeen who does not look on his father as an imbecile or a fool. This is the observation and the testimony of pretty nearly every foreign observer who has studied our civilization and our society. Go into any crowded street car and you will see a great calf of a boy sitting while a decrepit man or woman of three score years and ten is standing, painfully holding to a strap. It occurs constantly in this town, the capital of what we fondly say is the greatest of nations.

Let us take down Solomon and read: "Do that spareth the rod hateth his son; but he that loveth him chasteneth him with a rod."

And remember chaos in the family makes anarchy in the state.

Advantage of the Blind.
A correspondent, writing on the illiteracy of the native classes, points out a strange anomaly. In devising the "Oriental Braille" alphabet for the use of the Indian blind it was found that the 63 combinations of the six Braille dots will serve to give the blind one code for the whole of the languages and dialects. With this code the Indian blind are being taught, and no difficulty has arisen in any vernacular. The ordinary native blessed with sight is more unfortunate. The complicated nature of the native syllabaries is such that it requires from 500 to 1,000 sorts of type to print a book even in simple language. Originally the letters of Assam were simple in form, but the modern varieties of Assam's letters have become elaborate and complicated.—Allahabad Pioneer.

JOB FOR THE FOOL-KILLER

Had He Been on the Lookout Inquisitive Passenger Certainly Could Not Have Escaped.

It all took place on a car the other day. Most of the passengers had made a mental note that the man with his jaw tied up was suffering from the toothache. The ever-present inquisitive passenger in the other fellow's ailment leaned over and spoke to the apparent sufferer.

"Does it keep you up nights?" he asked. The toothache man never replied.

"I'll bet it's a double tooth," continued the inquisitor, "and that the dentist couldn't pull it out without an awful lot of trouble and that—"

"You fool," muttered the man around the corner of the bandage.

"Oh, all right," replied the stranger. "If that's the way you feel about it I won't say another word, but you are old enough to know that you shouldn't be riding on a car, for the cool air striking an exposed nerve causes an ache and that there are thirty-five hundred nerves radiating from your gums and that the exposure of any one of those is liable to cause more trouble, and furthermore every time you bite down on a piece of food you use enough force to close a door—why I knew a man who actually went crazy with the toothache—he looked a bit like you, too, and I often told him that the best way to stop a raging toothache was to go and take a—"

By this time the man with the aching molar had signalled the conductor, left the car and was rapidly beating it to the sidewalk.

"Strange," muttered the inquisitor to another passenger sitting alongside, "how unfriendly a man with the toothache is!"

HALL & HUEBEL

In the Union Days.

Galliard Hunt describes the social graces of Holly Madison and her First Drawing-Room, in the June Harper's, and recalls that those were the days when the society of the nation was upheld on the foundation of two principles. "One was that a man of high rank in the public service was entitled to high rank in private life. Everybody was proud of the new republic and thought it an honor to associate with those who guided its destinies. The other was that members of families who had always occupied prominence in private life should continue in their position. It was not until the next generation that the political doctrine of the equality of men was construed to require a removal of the barriers which separated groups of people in private life."

Modern Palmistry.

Palmistry, in its modern acceptance, is divided into two branches, chiromancy and chiromancy. Chiromancy defines the outward shape of the hand, and of its members, the thumb and finger. The name is derived from the Greek and means the laws of the hands. Chiromancy is also derived from the Greek and signifies divination by the hand—that is, by the lines, mounts and other marks on the palms of the hand.

CITY MEN GET GAME

Terrible Death Struggles With Bear Is Proven by Picture.

Photographic Studio Is Equipped With Every Accessory for Producing Thrilling Hunting Scenes While You Wait.

Greenville, Mo.—Mr. Cityhunter will be trooping in due season in scores to the Maine woods with his bulky, new and shining impudently and well-stuffed pocket book. If the former will not encompass the destruction of a moose or two deer, the latter will be unerring in its aim. Of course, the great majority of hunters who come to Maine for the big-game shooting are not satisfied unless they do their own killing, but there are others who come after a moose or the two deer allowed by the Maine law, and they don't care much how they got them.

Many so-called hunters get no further north than this little village, which, at the foot of the great Moosehead lake, is the gateway of a vast hunting region. They find others who are equally indisposed to venture out of reach of the comfortable hotels, daily papers with the sporting news and stock reports and other marks of civilization to be found here. They see "game" enough, but it has to do with pastboard affairs and is pursued in a comfortable corner not far from the great open fire in the hotel office.

They may buy souvenir cards in great variety to send to friends depicting thrilling scenes in the Maine jungle, home-made ones of birch bark may be had from the stock of the several souvenir stores and are said to be more effective and convincing. A most original enterprise, born of the demand by this class of frigid hunters, is the place where "Hunting Scenes While You Wait" would be an appropriate sign, if any sign was needed. It is a photographic studio, conducted by an enterprising firm of young men whose specialty is providing convincing proofs. A city hunter or may go home with his allowance of game and fall to impress upon his friends the fact that it fell before his fatal rifle, but when he produces photographs showing himself in a forest doleful standing over the yet quivering monarch of the forest and others of camp scenes with much game hung up, our hero surrounded by picturesque glades and looking the part of a real hunter—such are convincing proofs.

The studio referred to is an interesting place located near the lake shore just outside the village, and has been there for a number of years. It is started in a small way, but is now elaborately equipped. It is an odd affair, built of logs, like a hunting camp, but having each of its four sides got up to show a different front. Thus, when a customer appears he is asked, diplomatically, of course, what camp "he intended to visit, but was detained," etc. If he says "Camp Comfort," a well-known resort, the side of the studio which most resembles Camp Comfort in selected and in a few minutes a sign is produced and hung over the door reading "Camp Comfort." This makes the background. Then the properties are arranged, according to the wishes of the customer. Stuffed moose, deer, bear, and game birds are carried in the equipment of the studio.

These may be hung up by the heels in a row or disposed in picturesque landscapes on the ground. The hunter is posed equipped in full hunting regalia. If he is lacking any essential part of the regulation outfit, the studio will supply it. If he wants sporting companions to appear the studio people call in their regular "supers," who are ready to go on without much change of costume. These are the hangarons around the steamboat landing at the foot of the lake, who are too lazy to do anything more arduous than hanging their pictures taken.

So it is that Mr. Cityman, without going a mile from his hotel here may have photographs taken of himself in full hunting rig, apparently at a camp miles from civilization and surrounded by trophies of the chase. If he cares for the pose after the fallen forest monarch he is taken to a little glen a short distance from the studio and two of the supers bring out the fallen forest monarch on their shoulders and dump it down, being careful to handle it carefully for fear of wearing off the hair.

Quick drying and rapid printing processes are employed, and in an hour or two the customer is supplied with finely mounted, convincing photographs, to all intents and purposes, taken in the heart of the wilderness by "one of our party, who had the snap-shot bug very badly, don't you know."

The photographing of fake hunters is not the only business of the Greenville studio, for many genuine hunters come with their game and the studio sends artists into the camps, where large parties pay well for real photographs. Another class of work is supplying photographs for the railroad guide books and for illustrators. By means of the well-equipped studio, the means and properties, a series of hunting scenes may be arranged by the exercise of a little ingenuity.

The studio has several stuffed moose and bear, and more than a dozen stuffed deer, so mounted that they may be propped in any position, and so it is that sets of game pictures supposed to cover the vast game regions of Maine are made on half an acre of Moosehead lake shore.

Made Him a Fair Offer.

A good story is told of the late A. J. Wyant, the artist. A young man called at Mr. Wyant's studio one day and asked him to give him some lessons in painting. "What can you do?" asked the old artist. "Oh, I can finish a landscape first-rate, but I never know how to begin one!" was the reply. "If that's so," remarked the veteran painter, solemnly, "I think we can easily make a bargain. I find that I can begin a picture without any trouble; but it is a dreadful task to finish it satisfactorily. Now, if you'll teach me how to finish your pictures, I'll teach you how to begin yours." Then the old gentleman went back to work, and the young artist went away to think over the proposition.

WYANT'S OWN STORY. A young man called at Mr. Wyant's studio one day and asked him to give him some lessons in painting. "What can you do?" asked the old artist. "Oh, I can finish a landscape first-rate, but I never know how to begin one!" was the reply. "If that's so," remarked the veteran painter, solemnly, "I think we can easily make a bargain. I find that I can begin a picture without any trouble; but it is a dreadful task to finish it satisfactorily. Now, if you'll teach me how to finish your pictures, I'll teach you how to begin yours." Then the old gentleman went back to work, and the young artist went away to think over the proposition.

NEEDS OF BACKWARD CHILD

Moral Awakening Comes After All His Physical Defects Have Been Removed.

The greatest need of the average backward child, after his physical defects have been removed and his body given a decent chance to develop, is a moral awakening, says Elberta Childs Dorr in the course of an article describing the public school work for backward children, in Hampton's Magazine. Virtually all such children are selfish, passionate and malicious. They love to destroy. They love to inflict pain. They delight in disturbing the order of a classroom. Almost always are they untruthful, and very frequently are they thievish.

Why not? They live in a state of constant struggle with the world—an unequal struggle in which their miserable little souls are daily and hourly crucified. Around them is a world of normal children who learn easily things beyond the power of the backward to acquire; who are praised and loved and rewarded. In the playground the backward children enviously watch the others perform feats of strength and skill. Sometimes the dullard or the handicapped child tries to break into a game or a contest and is pushed aside or chased away by the strong. A child not feeling minded but merely dull and on that account behind the procession resents with a bitterness not to be comprehended this constant pushing aside. Exactly like a rat fighting for life in a corner he strikes back viciously, desperately.

Far more than their brains the emotional natures of such children need cultivation. Far more important than learning to read is learning to love and trust. Vices of temperament must be unlearned, bad habits must be overcome, a whole garden full of weeds must be cleared away before the soil is ready for planting. After that the task is not fraught with serious difficulties.

A Strange Hairpin.

"This," said the gay bachelor, leading his visitors through the flat, "is my famous collection of hairpins."

The hairpins, 100 or more, filled a Louis Quinze cabinet. Some were of shell, some of silver, some even of gold.

"This is the strangest," said the bachelor, "this hollow glass one. See, there is a fluid in it, a perfume. And here is a tiny hole, so that, when the pin lies obliquely in the hair, the perfume is emitted slowly in delicate drops."

"It is a Japanese hairpin," he concluded. "A geisha in a Yokohama tea house gave it to me. I can still see her as she sat on her cushion, playing the samisen, while very slowly, in drops resembling tears, the perfume fell on her amber-colored cheek."

"That woman over there," he moved at the party, "is interesting looking, but what age is she? She is pretty, too, but she seems to be of no definite age. She is neither old nor young, but she is interesting."

"That's just the difference between us women and you men," said his companion. "If you are interesting, we don't care what your age is. We even don't care how bald you are, if you are interesting."

"Don't!" he groaned, pressing both hands to his head to try and hide his baldness.

Picks Up Pawned Medals.

A man was peering through the window of an old curiously shop on Third avenue, making notes on the back of an envelope, relates the New York Sun. He said to a bystander who was looking at him inquiringly: "See those old war medals in there? I go around town making lists of those that are for sale. I send them over to various dealers in Europe who sell them to collectors. These dealers make offers to me, and if I make enough margin I take them up by buying the medal at once and shipping it. Now York is the best town in the world to get old European war medals in. Ex-soldiers and discharged sailors usually come here as immigrants, get into hard luck and dispose of their medals."

TIRE REPAIRING THAT PAYS

Tire repairing DOES pay and we are PROVING it to every one that brings us work to do. We'll prove it to you if you are enough interested in your tire cost to bring your old tires in to us. We'll cut your tire expense in half for you.

If you have had the misfortune to run over a broken bottle and cut your tire badly don't throw it away. Bring it in to us and let us put a section in it for you. Your tire will be practically as good as ever. We will guarantee that the place we fix will never give way again.

The price will range from $3.00 up, depending on the size of the tire and cut. An ordinary cut clear through a three-inch tire (or a blowout) would cost you $3.00. The same in a four-inch would cost you $4.00, and so on.

WE DON'T CARE HOW BAD A CUT OR BLOWOUT YOU MAY HAVE IN YOUR TIRE. If the rest of the tire is in good shape we can fix it for you and fix it right, too.

PERHAPS YOUR TIRE NEEDS RETREADING. If it does have it done at once before you ruin it entirely, but don't throw it away till you have had us look it over for you.

WE ACTUALLY GIVE MORE MILES FOR THE SAME MONEY THAN YOU CAN GET OUT OF NEW TIRES. We will give you two retreads and a sectional repair for the same amount that you pay for a new tire.

TIRE REPAIRING DOES PAY AND WE CAN PROVE IT TO YOU IF YOU ARE WILLING TO BE SHOWN.

If your tire is in such shape as to be absolutely beyond repair let us talk to you on now tires. We are selling the best tire on the market today.

FEDERAL TIRES ARE KNOWN WHEREVER THEY ARE USED AS THE TIRE THAT WON'T BLOW OUT. It sounds strong, but so are FEDERAL TIRES. Let us talk to you before buying others.

THE "HORSEY" NO-CEMENT PATCH for emergency repairs is the best we have seen yet in the line of a quick repair. Think of it, no cement to stick to your fingers, no vile smelling acid and no tedious wait for the cement to dry. ALL YOU HAVE TO DO IS TO CLEAN OFF THE TUBE, DAMPEN THE PATCH WITH GASOLINE AND STICK IT ON. Hold your foot on it for ONE MINUTE AND THE JOB IS DONE.

Heat does not affect "HORSEY" patches. The hotter it gets the better it sticks. They are clean, quick and sure. The ideal hot weather patch for summer use.

Give us a call. What we don't know about tires is not worth knowing.

The Master Stroke in Motor Car Designing

The success of the Overland is credited entirely to the master engineers who designed it. They had as a guide all that others had done. But it is what they added which has made this car the masterpiece of mechanism. It is their simplified construction, their marvelous engine, their method of control which have brought the Overland to this envied place.

ALL THE BEST IDEAS.

Before the Overland was made, motor car engineering had reached a high state of development. Time had already told which features were best for almost every part of the car. And the designers of the Overland, knowing these facts, combined the best ideas developed.

But they made a new engine, and it happens to solve the most serious of motor problems. It is quiet and powerful. It is free from complexities. The very best motor ever employed three shifts of gears. In one of our tests, employing three shifts of gears, we ran it 7,000 miles without stopping. And many an owner has run it up to 10,000 miles without even cleaning a spark plug.

Secondly, nothing can fire it. This faithful engine has done more than all else to bring Overland cars to the top.

THE SIMPLIFIED CAR

The next greatest step was to reduce the number of parts. In one part, for instance, they invented one piece which takes the place of 47. And every part saved reduces the risk of trouble.

They devised the pedal control found in these of the Overland models. Push one pedal forward to go ahead and backward to reverse. Push another pedal forward to get on high speed. The hands have nothing to do but steer.

As a result, a child can master the car in ten minutes. Any member of the family can run it.

The car is easy to care for, and the cost of upkeep is slight. For the man who runs his own car, and who seeks for economy, the Overland has every advantage.

REDUCTION IN COST.

We have never attempted to stint the cost of the Overlands. We use the four separate cylinders, the five-bearing crank shaft, and ball-bearing transmissions. Also many other costly features which some medium-priced cars omit.

Every part is as good as it can be. The major part of our output comes from a factory which for years turned out a $1,250 car. It is made by the same workmen, under the same inspection.

But we have cut the cost, and yet bettered the car, by using the latest automatic machinery. The Overland—like a watch—is built by machines which make no mistakes and permit no variation.

Also we have cut the cost by multiplied production. And by making the parts which other makers buy. The reduction in cost has been 20 per cent within the past year alone. Now our output is so large that none can compete with us.

RESCUED-BY YOUNG WOMAN

Chicago Bride Rescues Him When His Companion Sinks Beneath the Water.

Arthur Granger of this city, who with his wife has been visiting at the Earl Arnold home at Woodstock, Ill., was nearly drowned while bathing at Crystal Lake last evening. His companion, Emory Arnold, aged twenty-five, drowned before aid could reach them. The two young men had entered over from Woodstock and were swimming from a boat in the middle of the lake when the accident occurred. Granger nearly lost his life trying to save his companion and his own rescue was most dramatic. Mrs. Richard Watson Cross of Rogers Park, a bride of a week, heard cries for help and came to his aid in a rowboat. Granger was unconscious when brought to the hotel, but a telephone message from his wife to her brother, Dr. Frank Furrow, this morning announced he was out of danger. ## FREE DISTRIBUTION OF

FLOUR.

Miss Ross to Call on Every Lady in Janesville.

Miss Ross, the solicitor for the Jersey Lily Flour, who is distributing the 2-lb. free samples of flour, is accorded a hearty welcome most every place she visits. "The women of Janesville," says Miss Ross, "are especially cordial to me and are glad to test this flour just to see what it will do. Invariably the women, particularly those who are proficient in the culinary art, find that the flour is superior, and in view of the fact that it can be ordered from any grocer, most of them buy a trial sack."

Jersey Lily flour has been sold in Janesville for many years and its sale has increased so steadily that the manufacturers, Johnston Bros. of Janesville, Minn., have decided to put Miss Ross on an salary just to sample the flour and encourage more women to use Jersey Lily. The efforts have been a success so far, as the many dealers are reporting increased sales right along.

Two Boys Up For Speeding Autos; One Paid A Fine

Case Against Stanley Yonce Dismissed—Paul Steiner of Indianapolis Assessed $15.

When the case against Stanley Yonce for speeding an automobile on Washington street a week ago was called in municipal court, this morning it was found that the complaining witness was out of town. The young man was represented by Attorney William Smith and had entered a plea of "not guilty." The attorney stated that his client would pay the costs on condition that the case be dismissed and the Chief of Police consenting. It was so dismissed after Judge Field had given the boy a severe lecture.

Paul Steiner of Indianapolis, demonstrating the Westcott car, exceeded the 12 miles an hour limit on West Milwaukee street this morning—sloughing on a bit of damp pavement, sideswiping a vehicle, and nearly turning turtle. He pleaded guilty in municipal court and the minimum penalty of $10 with 30 days was imposed. Steiner is an eighteen-year-old chauffeur, and the manager, a youth of about the same age, claims to have lost a pocket book containing $100 on the way to Janesville. It was necessary to have the firm telegraph money to pay the fine and hotel bills.

FIRE! TWO SHOTS B. THE FUGITIVE WOULD NOT STOP

Johnny Carroll Cave Chief Appleby Hot Chase on Center Avenue Last Night—Tom Joyce Jailed.

Johnny Carroll, after landing up with intoxicated last evening, became such a bad actor that he was put out of the Dalton saloon. He lingered in the vicinity for a time, hoping profanely and abusively to offend those who had cast him from the door and when someone appeared at the door to protest against the brute he started to throw stones. Chief Appleby ran on his trail and chased him on Center avenue and again on Center street, firing two shots in the ground in an effort to stop the sprinter but without avail. On the latter thoroughfare the officer called aloud to some wayfarers to block the runaway. A one-eyed man tried to catch the fugitive on his "hook" but failed. The next instant, however, Carroll tripped and fell and four people had him pinned to the ground. In municipal court this morning he pleaded guilty to being unable to pay a fine and costs amounting to $9, went to the jail for 15 days.

Tom Joyce also is likely to spend the glorious Fourth behind the bars. While intoxicated night before last he gratuitously insulted a young woman on the street and tried to thrash her escort.

Last night he was drunk again. He "acknowledged the corn" in municipal court this morning and was fined $5 and costs with the alternative of 15 days in the jail. No one appeared to pay the fine for him.

Daily Helps to Health and Happiness

By GEORGE F. BUTLER, A. M., M. D.

Emerson says, "that the more of cheerfulness or good temper that is spent the more of it remains." Cheerfulness is helpful every day and every minute; it grows upon itself and is contagious. It gives elasticity to the spirit; causes it to fly to the difficult; causes it to despair; for they are encountered with hope, and the mind acquires that happy disposition to improve the opportunities which lead to success. Without cheerfulness you cannot enjoy perfect physical, mental, or moral health. Learn to laugh; cultivate the "honesty" in you; cultivate that part of your nature that is quick to see the mirthful side of things, so shall you be enabled to shed many of life's troubles, as the plumage of the bird sheds rain. Fun is better for a sick child than medicine, and after all, we are but grown-up children, and whether sick or well, we should not drain our vitality, shorten our lives, and make everyone about us uncomfortable by worrying. Cheer up! Our misgivings may not be true, and remember that mirth is the best tonic in the world.

LAST LETTER ON FIGHT FROM WATT

FORMER JANESVILLE MAN WRITES INTERESTING FACTS CONCERNING COMING BATTLE.

SWORN IN AS A DEPUTY

He and His Business Partner, Walter Hildebrand, Will be Stationed Fifty Feet From Ring.

William W. Watt, who has been writing a number of interesting letters from Reno, Nevada, on the coming Jones-Johnson battle there Monday, has written the last letter to the Janesville Gazette, telling of the arrangements for the big battle and gives some of the "dope" on the contest. He and his business partner, Walter Hildebrand, have been sworn in as deputies and will be stationed within fifty feet of the ring side.

Reno, Nevada, June 29.

Editor Gazette—This afternoon I again paid a visit to the Jack Johnson training camp and the easy attitude of the "Big Smoke" is proving the wonder of the hundreds who visit his camp. Johnson, as he boxed several rounds with his men, taking first one, then another, assumed the same carefree expression upon his face, so carefree to all and about which Johnson's comment has been made. Johnson is a good fellow in spite of his color. He encourages the crowds to daily visit his training quarters by announcing in advance just what his daily program is to be to the hour, and then carrying out the program to the very letter. He is an accommodating chap. Jeffries is just the opposite and no one knows his business not even the trainers until Jeff tells them that he is ready for a work out. Thousands from this city have daily made the two mile trip out to Mount Shikago only to find that Jeff has broken off to the mountains to fish. When he trains it is so early that no one is around only his own men.

This afternoon Jack Johnson boxed 12 rounds, after some gymnastic exercises, shadow boxing and hair punching. He boxed up with Kaufman whom he put through four here rounds. There was no let up in the last round and at the close Kaufman had to be assisted to his corner. Then the colored fighter, Cotton, was taken on. And how he did go after that Cotton. The latter is a clever boxer who has a wide reputation but the way the big black landed on him was enough to put out a dozen men. The heat was terrific but Jack only smiled as the perspiration rolled from his black face. There for two straight hours Johnson kept on his work with one man then another.

With Cotton was off his guard Johnson suddenly happened to think of a neat little hook to the jaw and he passed it out to Cotton, resulting in that individual measuring his length upon the canvas covered floor. The wd was startled. Four such rounds with Cotton were followed with two with Monahan and then two with Mills. Johnson kept on his playfulness, occasionally sneaking some word to those about him and at the same time dealing out a blow that would send any ordinary man into stertor. When the colored fighter concluded the twelve rounds, he still had his smile and composure and looked as if he would like to have had Jeffries step right into the ring there and then.

Among the interested spectators at the ring was Governor Dickinson of Nevada. Johnson knew well that the head of the state was watching his work and on this account he lived up more than usual.

Cotton is no doubt a fighter and the first round he drew the blood from Johnson which made the big fellow mad, and the knockout blow quickly followed. And in the same spirit the other boxers that followed Cotton got all that was coming to them and then some. It is the talk among the local sporting crowd that Johnson is coming with the goods provided that the coming battle has not been fixed for Jeffries to win and then retire for all time which would leave Johnson still champion.

At the Jeffries camp there was nothing doing all the afternoon. Jeff, lying in the afternoon, was most cordial in his greeting to the team train from Price, Jeffries also had an hour's chat with Governor Dickinson who was driven from the Johnson camp to that of Jeffries.

The betting in the local pool rooms is still in favor of Jeffries in spite of the fact that the black giant has made a popular hit with the local public. This afternoon two bets were closed here at $2,000 to $1,500 that Jeff would win the battle.

Jeffries announced this afternoon that he had finally selected his seconds. The men who will stand behind him to give counsel when the going gets tough are James J. Corbett who is authorized to give the only shouting orders, Roger Connell who carries the medical case, Van Court, Jack Jeffries and Joe Chynoweth will leap into the ring the instant after each round and with rough towels will rub down their fighter. Former Burns is to have charge of the water buckets and the sponge off of Jeffries face. According to the present plans Manager Berger will not be in the ring. Bob Armstrong will also be missing from Jeffries corner. Jeff is known to have as much confidence in his colored sparring partner as any man in his camp; but it is most likely that Armstrong, with the rare fact that he has always displayed, has had chosen of his own accord to be elsewhere than in the Jeff corner after the fight is under way.

Sweeping away the last lingering fear of executive interference Governor Dickinson stated today that there was no chance for intervention. The exact words of the Governor are: "My previous statements on this question stand today. The state of Nevada will in no way interfere as the laws permit prize fighting and in this particular instance have been complied with."

Every fighter of National fame is today in Reno with the exception of just three and tomorrow Fitzsimmons, Wolf and Tomorrow are expected.

Never in the history of the ring has a battle got the light earlier to guessing as has the coming battle. Every night around the hotels I have heard scores of Eastern reporters ask each other their opinion on the probable outcome. They are all up in the air. They all admit that two such men never before faced each other in the same ring.

One of the best critics on a New York paper informed me last evening that for the past two months he has been with both the fighters and that in his opinion, Jeffries will be given the decision after a long and hard fought fight. Johnson he says will face the fastest and hardest man that he ever dreamed of. I think that Jeff will go right after him and will never agree never dreamed of. Johnson never had a Jeffries before him in his other battles.

And there you are as far as dope goes. No one out here is in a position to know what they are talking about. In the meantime the local poolrooms are raking in the bets by the bushel.

The citizens of Reno are fully awake to the importance of having 20,000 visitors here for at least two days. A reception has been planned for the 300 visiting newspaper men who will be entertained at an elaborate banquet. The Ellis will keep open house all the time for all visiting editors and will serve lunch daily to all visiting brothers—and they will be here by the hundreds. The streets in the business section are one blaze of lights there being two information stretched over arches. Two information highways have been established by the business men. Even the National Army has sent an army of recruits here as they say "to drive the devil out of Reno." They certainly have a tough job on their hands.

The immense arena is now about completed and it has been made a permanent structure which looks as though this fight is but one of a series that are on the future program.

Eighty telephone operators arrived in the city this morning and will be put to work at once by the companies. This morning Mr. Jeffries and myself were sworn in as deputies and when the battle is called we are to be stationed within fifty feet of the ring side to "preserve order." In all 200 deputies will be there ready for emergencies.

This Western fever is something there in a city like Reno. As I said these three it is just about the craziest evening and the surprise Tuesday on the street below is no folly that it is hard work for me to think. These bands are making the business district tonight followed by thousands who are either shouting for Jeffries or Johnson. And what will it be by Sunday night when thousands of new comers will have arrived. There certainly is going to be some fight and crowd here on July Fourth and the final outcome I leave to you.

CHINA IN STATE OF DECAY

Rule Seen Everywhere, and No Attempt Made to Stay the Ravages of Time.

"Along the road—and this is characteristic—nothing is being repaired," writes the Peking correspondent of the London Times. "It is the national failing to spend nothing on repairs, to build and then leave the building to fall gradually into decay and ruin. Nor is anything cleaned, and the squalor that is a feature even of the imperial palace in Peking is most extraordinary. A few miles out of Peking there is a fine stone bridge of five arches; but the piers are falling away, the parapet has disappeared, and the flagstones with which it is paved have great gaps and hollows, so that the cart rumbles and crashes and bumps across it in a way that would break any but a Chinese springless back. To repair is no one's business."

At another stage of his journey he remarks: "Perhaps to some extent the anticipated coming of a railway, which will kill the present cart traffic, may account for the shocking condition of the native lanes. With railway extension in the air, there is no inducement for the tinker to spend money on the upkeep of his hotel. Nothing is repaired; the filth and squalor are amazing. In the fifth yard the well has its mouth below the level of the soil, so that water which is split may flow back into the well and carry with it the surface drainage."

"A doctor must notice the prevalence of consumption. To the universal habit of expectoration on the floor, the exclusion of air, and the absence of drainage this prevalence must be due."

TAFT SAYS ROADS NEED NOT FEAR NEW RATE LAW.

WILL NOT BE USED AS A CLUB

President is Desirous of Reassuring
All Interests That Interstate Commerce
Commission Will Enforce
Provisions of Act With Fairness.

Boston, Mass., July 2.—There is to be no radical effort to coerce the railroads. The new law is not to be used as a club. The commission is to live at peace with the railroads. Conservatism is to rule the commission. This is in effect the instructions issued by President Taft.

In a long interview with Chairman Martin A. Knapp of the commission President Taft went exhaustively into the provisions of the new law and later in conversation with callers he earnestly pointed out that there need be no apprehension that the commission will run amuck or that the new law will be used to club indiscriminately all railroads that propose an advance in rates.

Equal Rates for All.
The law, the president pointed out, was not passed for the purpose of lowering rates, or even of holding all rates where they are at the time of the passage of the law, but rather for the purpose of equalizing rates and keeping them as low as possible in tune with business conditions at all times.

Four has been expressed that the idea would go abroad that the United States government was about to embark upon a campaign of oppression against all railroads, which would be disastrous to the railroad business.

Martin A. Knapp.

with crop moving time approaching, through the avoidance of American securities by foreign investors. This is one of the things that the president desires to avoid. He has no sympathy with the Wall street operators and is not influenced by the fact that paper values in Wall street have declined within the past few days, but he is desirous of reassuring investors as well as the business managers of the railroads, that the latter are not to be clubbed, that the power of suspension of increases in rates is not to be used on all rates, but only on those that appear to be unreasonable and that the proposed increases are only to be invalidated when they are proven to be unreasonable.

Roads Given More Time.
In support of this fixed policy of the interstate commerce commission it was pointed out in connection with the visit of Chairman Knapp that while the recent decisions of the commission relative to freight rates in the west was against a number of proposed increases, the commission at the same time sustains some of the increases and in all of the cases has allowed the railroads until next October to show by a practical working of rates, as fixed by the commission, the reasonableness of the latter's rulings.

Conference of Rabble Decides to Put Views Before the Public.

Charlevoix, Mich., July 2.—The central conference of American rabbis, in session here, went on record to the effect that "this is not a Christian country," and warned against "the menace of sectarianism."

The conference voted to place these declarations before the public in the shape of a tract. The matter was brought up in the discussion of the use of the Bible in the public schools, which the rabbis supreme court has just declared illegal. The conference also voted a protest against the caricaturing of the Jew on the stage. Individual effort to do away with it having failed, the rabbis will institute a collective campaign.

FIRE SURROUNDS TWO TOWNS.

Loss by Blazing Forests in Rainy River District is Immense.

Winnipeg, Man., July 2.—Forest fires have during the past few days wrought terrible havoc in the Rainy River district, destroying timber and property variously estimated at from three to six million dollars. The town of Emo is seriously threatened and is practically cut off from communication with the outside with the exception of a single telephone wire. Fort Francis is surrounded by fire and no word can be got from the stricken town. Reports of campers and bushmen having perished are frequent.

Washington, July 2.—Demands of conductors and trainmen on the railroads in the southeastern territory directly involving about 10,000 men may develop a serious labor disturbance.

For fifteen days the mediators under the Erdman act have been laboring with the general managers' committee of the road and with the representatives of the men to bring about an adjustment of the controversy. Thus far their efforts have been practically unavailing. The men have voted to strike unless their demands for increased wages and better labor conditions are granted.

Skiffer is supposed to have kept the negro Brady, wanted for murdering a white man, in concealment, after he had promised to give up to the authorities. The other negroes were regarded as accessories to the crimes that have been charged against Brady and other negroes, for which one white man has been killed and two negroes lynched.

Armed white men are scouring the country for Brady and some other negroes.

Summer Sales

The months of July and August are usually set aside for clearance of stocks by the merchants and the summer sales which the public see so enthusiastically advertised in the newspapers are not looked at in just the same light by the merchant himself.

A SALE IS A NECESSARY EVIL. Merchants who carry large stock to supply a large and increasing patronage must have good assortments during the season, but as soon as the season is over the goods must be disposed of, EVEN AT A LOSS rather than be carried over for another year.

Many merchants find upon looking over their stock, that a sale is unnecessary, but most merchants find that it is better to accept a loss on goods this season than to have their money tied up in the goods for another year and even then be compelled to take a greater loss in order to dispose of them.

Most sales are advertised in The Gazette, because The Gazette reaches more homes for less money than any other newspaper in this field.

The Gazette goes into five times the number of homes reached by any other newspaper in Janesville.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, July 2, 1870.—Jatlings—Mad. Gen. Randall, formerly from this city, has been ordered to Washington with a delegation of Indiana from the territory included in his agency. He passed through Chicago today.

The Janesville sporting club took a little practice at pigeon shooting at the driving park yesterday. They are beginning a match for Monday afternoon which will no doubt be interesting to outsiders.

The members of the family of Mr. Charles Wheeler, residing on Bluff street, were taken suddenly ill yesterday, immediately after dinner and from the symptoms it is supposed they were laboring under the effects

The Dying Fisherman By WALT MASON

Once a fisherman was dying in his humble, lowly cot, and the pastor sat beside him saying things that hit the spot, so that all his futile terrors left the dying sinner's heart, and he said: "The journey's lonely, but I'm ready for the start. There is just one little matter that is fretting me," he sighed, "and perhaps I'd better tell it ere I cross the Great Divide. I have got a string of stories that I've told from day to day; stories of the fish I've captured, and the ones that got away, and I fear that when I tell them they are apt to stretch a mile; and I wonder when I'm waited to that land that's free from guile, if they'll let me tell my stories if I try to tell them straight, or will angels lose their tempers then, and chase me through the gate?" Then the pastor sat and pondered, for the question vexed him sore; never such a weird conundrum had been sprung on him before. Yet the courage of conviction moved him soon to a reply, and he wished to fill the fisher with fair visions of the sky; "you can doubtless tell fish stories," said the clergyman, aloud, "but I'd stretch them very little if old Jonah's in the crowskin."

GARFIELD SENDS WARM LETTER.

Sounds Insurgent Slogan in Accepting Invitation to Speak.

Cleveland, O., July 2.—In accepting an invitation to speak before the new progressive Republican organization of Cleveland on July 11, James H. Garfield, former secretary of the interior and warm friend of Theodore Roosevelt, wrote to the organization a letter defining his attitude on progressive Republicanism.

"It is most timely to consider what the progressive movement means and what action it calls for," wrote Mr. Garfield. "Today political liberty is at stake, and the life of the nation is threatened by great special interests, who would control our political activities for their own benefit, regardless of the common good. There is no half way ground in the fight of today. The special interests must be driven out of politics and kept out. The progressives of today will win the battle."

HYDE TO BE AIDED BY STORK.

Imprisoned Physician Will Visit Home When He Arrives.

Kansas City, Mo., July 2.—A petition signed by Dr. B. Clark Hyde and his attorneys, asking that the imprisoned physician be allowed to visit his home at the time of the birth of his expected heir, was handed to Judge Ralph S. Latham of the criminal court. Judge Latham said the request would be granted.

Boy Killed at Charlari Party.

Torre Haute, Ind., June 2.—Chamney Bealmer, at Janesville, aged fourteen, was shot and instantly killed by Jennings Wise, aged fourteen, at a Charlari party for newboys. Wise says the shooting was accidental.

IN HURRY FOR POSTAL BANKS.

Many Postmasters Desire Their Offices Be Made Depositories.

Washington, July 2.—It will be several months before the machinery for the operation of a postal savings bank can be constructed so as to permit the government to go ahead and establish depositories in conformity with the new law. This fact, previously indicated by statement from the postmaster general, was emphasized following the first meeting of the trustees who are to administer the postal savings system. The greatest possible haste will be made, but there is a great amount of detail to be arranged, and it is desired to have everything in shape for thorough, systematic work before establishing the banks.

That the country, awaiting for many years the action which has just been taken by congress, is impatient to have the banks started is shown by the requests pouring in on the post-office department from postmasters who desire to have their offices designated as depositories at the outset. Private banks also are applying in force to be made depositories of the funds. The popular demand for haste is recognized and it will be met with consistent regard for the care that must be taken with the preliminaries.

Of course, you know just what you would do in another man's place, but why don't you do the right thing in your own place?

Invisible Animals Alive in the Sea.

The shore of the sea permits the study of more than the poet's horizon or tinted shell. There are tiny animals that live and move among the plants of the sea, and these may be observed clinging to any favorable ocean object. "A small fragment of bark, streaming with fine plant-like growths," says Howard J. Shannon, in the June Harper's, "is cut from the water-worn timbers which the receding tide has exposed; and this apparently insignificant fragment, populous with curious life, is placed in a glass of water beneath the microscope. Veritable miniature forests appear, endless vistas open; teeming with curious interest and populated by creatures more strange and more wonderful than any the imagination can conceive."

Mad to Find His Man.

"Mark Twain," said a magazine editor, "liked to tell, as an illustration of persistence and push, a story about a sheephead bay race. He said that at the end of an important race a young man shouted so savagely, 'Hats off! hats off, there!' that every one in hearing distance obeyed him and stood bareheaded. A moment later the young man hastened towards an elderly gentleman, shouting as he ran, 'You can put on your hat again now. It's all right.' Some one asked him later why he had made all the people take their hats off. 'Well,' he replied, 'I bet fifty with a bald-headed man, and I had to find him, hadn't I?'"

NEW INVENTION OF THIEVES

Philadelphia Shoplifters Equipped With a Really Ingenious Device.

Wholesale thefts from a score or more of Philadelphia stores were discovered recently through the arrest of two men and a young woman, and from $3,000 to $4,000 worth of stolen goods were recovered in their room. The detectives entered the room just as the three were unloading goods of various kinds from the big paper boxes. Hawley, upon whom cards were later found, giving the name "William Hawley," character comedian, demanded to know who they were and what they wanted. The detectives soon enlightened him and told the three they were under arrest.

The boxes were especially arranged for making thefts easy, the arrangement being something new even in the varied arts of shoplifting. A hole about 12 inches long and 5 inches wide was cut in each box, and the box was so carried under the arm with this hole next to the side of the body that it was almost impossible to discover it. The accused would each buy some trifling article and pay for it. The bill was then taken and attached to the box in such a way that it could be seen readily by the shopkeeper and store detectives. Each of the thieves would operate at different counters, as a rule, but sometimes one of the men and the woman would operate together.

Wisconsin's Greatest Land Sale

A Wonderful Opportunity For Settlers and Investors to Secure Rich Farm Land in America's Greatest Dairy State For

$2.50 TO $20 PER ACRE ON EASY TERMS

The enormous Wisconsin land holdings of the lumber interests are now on sale and are rapidly passing into the hands of settlers and far-sighted investors. These rich lands, comprising over 2,000,000 acres, have been thrown on the market by the American Immigration Company of Chicago, Ill., who, at such low prices and on such easy terms that the whole country is aroused. The center of activity is in the famous Round Lake Country, in Sawyer County, where 10,000 acres, the very cream of the ROUND LAKE WISCONSIN FARM LANDS, is being cut up into farms.

The American Immigration Company owns the fee to all the lands they offer to sell. The prices run from $2.50 to $20 per acre, depending on the value of the standing timber, location, etc.

"The land is sold on ten years' time. The soil is rich and yields abundant crops. On much of this land there is enough hard-wood timber to pay for the farm. It is a country of abundant rainfall and the purest of water.

This is unquestionably the greatest cheap land opportunity of the century. Wisconsin land values are advancing by leaps and bounds.

"The ROUND LAKE WISCONSIN FARM LANDS are going fast and the man who gets in at the ground floor price can make himself independent in five years. The time to act is NOW.

A Storekeeper Says:

"A lady came into my store lately and said:
"I have been using a New Perfection Oil Cook-Stove all winter in my apartment. I want one now for my summer home. I think these oil stoves are wonderful. If only women knew what a comfort they are, they would all have one. I spoke about my stove to a lot of my friends, and they were astonished. They thought that there was a smell and smoke from an oil stove, and that it heated a room just like any other stove. I told them of my experience, and one after another they got one, and now, not one of them would give hers up for five times its cost."

The lady who said this had thought an oil stove was all right for quickly heating milk for a baby, or boiling a kettle of water, or to make coffee quickly in the morning, but she never dreamed of using it for difficult or heavy cooking. Now she knows.

Do you really appreciate what a New Perfection Oil Cook-Stove means to you? No more coal to carry, no more coming to the dinner table so tired that you can't eat. Just light a New Perfection Stove and immediately the heat from an intense blue flame shoots up to the bottom of pot, kettle or oven. But the room isn't heated. There is no smoke, no smell, no outside heat, no drudgery in the kitchen where one of these stoves is used.

Cashier's Note: Be sure you get this stove—see that the name-plate reads "New Perfection."

The Courage of Captain Plum

By JAMES OLIVER CURWOOD

Illustrations by Magnus C. Kellner

(Copyright 1908 by Bobbitt-Merrill Co.)

St. James, Wis., and "Nathan" stood like a statue, hardly breathing, until the sound of his feet had died away. Then he walked swiftly up the foot path that led to Obadiah's. He forgot his own danger in the excitement that pulsed with every fiber of his being, forgot his old caution and the fears that gave birth to it—forgot everything in those moments but Marion and his own great happiness. Nell's absence meant nothing to him now. He had held Marion in his arms, he had told her of his love, and though she had accepted it with gentle unresponsiveness he was thrilled by the memory of that last look in her eyes, which had spoken faith, confidence, and perhaps even more. What was that something she would tell him if he got Nell safely away? It was to be a reward for his own loyalty—he knew that, by the half-fearing tremble of her voice, the sobbing catch of her breath, the strange glow in her eyes. With her brother away she would confide in him? Would she tell him the secret of her elopement to St. James? Nathan was conscious of no madness in the wild hope that filled him; nothing seemed impossible to him now. Marion would meet him at midnight. She would go with him to the boat, and then—ah, he had solved the problem! He would use no force. He would tell her that Nell was in his canoe half a mile out from the shore and that he had promised to leave the island for good if she would go out to bid him good-by. And once there, a half a mile or a mile away, he would tell her that he had lied to her; and he would give her his heart to trample upon to prove the love that had made him do this thing, and then he would row her to the mainland.

It was the sight of Obadiah's cabin that brought his caution back. He came upon it so suddenly that an exclamation of surprise fell unguarded from his lips. There was no light to betray life within. He tried the door and found it locked. He peered in at the windows, listened, and knocked, and at last concealed himself near the path, confident that the little old counselor was still at St. James. For an hour he waited. From the rear of Obadiah's house a narrow footway led toward the lake and Nathan followed it, now as warily as an animal in search of prey. For half a mile it took him through the forest and ended at the white sands of the beach. In neither direction could Nathan see a light, and keeping close in the shadows of the trees he made his way slowly toward St. James. He had gone but a short distance when he saw a house directly ahead of him, a single gleam of light from a small window telling him that it was inhabited and that its tenants were at home. He crept down close to the water looking for a boat. His heart leaped with sudden exultation when he saw a small skiff drawn upon the beach and his joy was doubled at finding the oars still in the locks. It took him but a moment to shove the light craft into the sea and a minute later he was rowing swiftly away from the land.

Nathan was certain that by this time Nell had abandoned his search for the captured Typhoon and was probably paddling in the direction of St. James. With the hope of intercepting him he pulled an eighth of a mile from the shore and rowed slowly toward the head of the island. There was no moon, but countless stars glowed in a clear sky and upon the open lake Nathan could see for a considerable distance about him. For another hour he rowed back and forth and then beached his boat within a dozen rods of the path that came down from Obadiah's.

It was 10 o'clock. Two more hours he had tried to suppress his excitement, his apprehension, his eagerness, but now as he went back into the darkness of the forest they burst out anew. What if Marion should not keep the tryst? He thought of the plea whom Nell had said guarded the girl's home—and of Obadiah. Could he confide his plot to him and ask his assistance? As the minutes passed and these thoughts recurred again and again in his brain he could not keep the nervousness from growing within him. He was sure now that he would have to fight his battle without Nell. He saw the necessity of coolness, of judgment, and he began to demand these things of himself, struggling sternly against those symptoms of weakness which had replaced his confidence of a short time before. Gradually he fought himself back into his old faith. He would save Marion—without Nell, without Obadiah. If Marion did not come to him by midnight it would be because of the guards against whom Nell had warned him, and he would go to her. In some way he would get her to the boat, even if he had to fight his way through Arthur Croche's men.

With this return of confidence Nathan's thoughts reverted to his present greatest need, which was food. Since early morning he had eaten nothing and he began to feel the physical want in a craving that was becoming acutely uncomfortable. If Obadiah had not returned to his home he made up his mind that he would find entrance to the cabin and help himself. A sudden turn in the path which he was following, however, revealed one of the counselor's windows aglow with light, and as he pressed quietly around the end of the building the sound of a low voice came to him through the open door. Cautionly he approached and peered in. A large oil lamp, the light of which he had seen in the window, was burning on a table in the big room but the voice came from the little closet into which Obadiah had taken him the preceding night. For several minutes he crouched and listened. He heard the chuckling laugh of the old counselor—and then an incoherent raving that set his blood tingling. "There is a horror in the sound of madness, a horror that creeps to the very pit of one's soul, that sends shivering dread from every nerve center, that causes one who is alone with it to sweat with a nameless fear. It was the voice of madness that came from that little room. Before it Nathan quailed as if a clammy hand had reached out from the darkness and gripped him by the throat. He drew back shivering in every limb, and the voice followed him, shrieking now in a sudden burst of insane mirth and dying away a moment later in a hollow cackling laugh that seemed to curdle the blood in his veins. "Mad! Obadiah Price was mad! Stop by step Nathan fell back from the door. He felt himself trembling from head to foot. His heart thumped within his breast like the beating of a hammer. For an instant there was silence—a silence in which strange dread held him breathless while he watched the glow in the door and listened. And after that quiet there came suddenly a cry that ended in the exultant chattering of a name.

At the sound of that name Nathan sprang forward again. It was Marion's name and he strained his ears to catch the words that might follow it. As he listened, his head thrust half in at the door, Obadiah's voice became lower and lower, until at last it ceased entirely. Not a step, not a deep breath, not the movement of a hand disturbed the stillness of the little room. By inches Nathan drew himself inside the door. His heavy boot caught in a silver on the step but the rending of wood brought no response. It was the quiet of death that pervaded the cabin. It was a strange, growing fear of death that entered Nathan as he now hurried across the room and peered through the narrow aperture. The old counselor was half stretched upon the table, his arms reaching out, his long, thin fingers gripping the edges, his face buried under his shoulders. It looked as if death had come suddenly to him during some terrible convulsion, but after a moment Nathan saw that he was breathing. He went over and placed a hand on the old man's twisted back.

"Hello, Obadiah! Hello—hello!" he called cheerfully.

A shudder ran through the counselor's frame, as if the voice had startled him, his arms and body stiffened and slowly he lifted his head. Nathan tried to stifle the cry on his lips, tried to smile—to speak, but the terrible face that stared up into his own held him silent, motionless. He had heard the voice of madness, now he looked upon madness in the eyes that glared at him. In them was no sign of recognition, no passing flush of sanity. The white face was lined with purple veins, the mouth was distorted and the lips bleeding. Involuntarily he stepped back to the end of the table.

At his movement the counselor stretched out his arms with a sobbing moan.

"Nat—Nat—don't go—"

He fell again upon his face, clutching the table in a sudden convulsion. In the next room Nathan heard and noticed a pail of water and he brought this and wet the old man's head. For a long time Obadiah did not move, and when he did it was to reach out with a groping hand to find Nathan. A change had come into his face when he lifted it again, the mad fire had partly burned itself out of his eyes, the old chuckling laugh came from between his lips.

"A little weakness, Nat—a little weakness," he gasped faintly. "I have it now and then. Excitement—great excitement—" He straightened himself for a moment and stood, away from the table, then collapsed into a chair, his head drooping upon his breast.

Without arousing him from the stupor into which he had fallen, Nathan again concealed himself in the shadows outside the cabin where he could better guard himself against the possible approach of Mormon visitors. But he did not remain long. He struck a match and saw that it was nearly 11 and a sudden resolution turned him back to the cabin door. He believed that Obadiah would not easily arouse himself from the strange stupor into which he had fallen. Meanwhile he would find food and then conceal himself near the path to intercept Marion.

As he mounted the step he heard for the second time since landing upon the island the solemn tolling of the great bell at St. James, and as he paused for an instant to listen, peal upon peal followed the first until its brazen thunder rolled in one long booming echo through the forests of the Mormon kingdom. There came a shrill cry at his back and he whirled about to see the counselor standing in the center of the big room, his arms outstretched, his face lifted as it had been raised in prayer at the tolling of the same bell the night before—but this time it was not prayer that fell from his lips.

"Nat, ye have returned in the hour of vengeance! The hand of God is descending upon the Mormon kingdom!"

His words came in a gasping, but triumphant cry.

"And tomorrow—tomorrow—" He stepped forward, his voice crowning a wild joy. "Tomorrow—I shall be king!"

As he spoke the cabin trembled, a tremor passed under them, and the tolling of the bell was lost in a sudden tumult that came like the bursting crash of low thunder.

"What is it?" cried Nathan. He leaped into the room and caught Obadiah by the arm. "What is it?"

"The hand of God!" whispered the old man again. "Nat—Nat—" It was his old self that stood grinning and twisting his hands before Nathan now. "Nat—a thousand armed men are off the coast! The Lamanites of the mainland are descending upon the Mormon kingdom as the hosts of Israel upon Canaan! Strang is doomed—doomed—doomed—and tomorrow I shall be king!" His voice rose in a wailing shriek. He darted to the door and his chuckling laugh rang with the old madness as he pointed into the north where a lurid glow had mounted high into the sky.

"The signal from the bell!" he gurgled ekologically. "They are calling the Mormons to arms—but it is too late—too late! He, he, he, too late, Nat—too late!" He staggered back, gripping his throat, and fell upon the floor. "Too late—too late," he moaned, groveling weakly, as if struggling for breath. "Too late—Nat—Marion—"

A shiver passed through his body and he lay quite still.

TO PREVENT OVEREATING.
Overeating is a habit often due to abnormal conditions. The best way to prevent overeating is to determine how much food is necessary, set aside that amount and eat no more. If the amount is a fair average it may sometimes be a little too much and sometimes not quite enough, but in general it will be satisfactory. Eating more slowly tends to overcome the tendency to eat too much. Hurry tends to develop an abnormal appetite, and conversely, deliberation overcomes it. The quick lunch break is a result and a cause of feverish living.

A WOMAN'S BACK.
The Aches and Pains Will Disappear if the Advice of This Janesville Citizen is Followed.

A woman's back has many aches and pains. Most times "the kidneys" fault. Backache is really kidney ache. That's why Doan's Kidney Pills cure it.

Many Janesville women know this. Read what one has to say about it: Mrs. B. E. Jones, 157 Western Ave., Janesville, Wis., says: "I found Doan's Kidney Pills to be a reliable remedy for backache and kidney trouble. I suffered from pains in my back for years and although I tried various remedies, I received no relief. I could not walk erect, and had a constant, dull pain across my loins. If I sat for awhile I could scarcely get up and I did not rest well. I noticed Doan's Kidney Pills highly recommended and thinking they might benefit me, I procured a box at the People's Drug Co. They completely cured me in a short time. My back aches no more, since then and my kidneys have been normal. Doan's Kidney Pills are worthy of all the praise I can give them."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-McMillan Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Seek Way to Utilize Wood.
Much attention and thought, states the Chemical Trades Journal, have been bestowed by those engaged in the breaking up of battleships and other craft as to the profitable disposal of the large quantities of wood obtained from the various vessels in course of destruction. Although there is much useful timber got that can be sold for re-use, there is a considerable quantity that renders it practically valueless. One or two firms are contemplating putting down wood distillation plants to utilize the hitherto valueless wood.
